- Donor-funding Managers
- Fundraising Managers
- NGO Candidates
- Governance Directors
- Auditors
- Compliance Managers and Officials
- Financial Managers
- Public Sector Experts

Training Methodology

This course will utilise proven adult learning techniques to maximise knowledge retention and comprehension of available information.

This will include real interactive case studies to understand how best to utilise donor funding, browsing the latest tools and techniques to discover the best possible plan for your particular organisation, and group discussions to devise strategic workflows based on previous action plans that gain the most benefit from your funding and also meet your donor's expectations.

Summary

One of the key complexities of a donor-funded program is using the funds wisely and supporting social aims. It also involves managing the donors' expectations and considering their ideas and requirements based on their donated funds.

The planning and strategies involved in non-government organisations (NGOs) are key to any project's development and overall success. Your long-term goals are accountable to those donors who spend their money to develop socio-economic projects and leave the essential funds in the hands of project managers and developers to get the most return from their investment. You will need to create a strategic framework to meet your aims and objectives while ensuring future development, mitigating any fraud or theft, making essential and crucial decisions based on social needs and the requirements of your donors, and building credibility throughout your fundraising efforts.

This monetary management in donor-funded programs course is extremely practical and designed to enhance your responsibilities, credibility, and clarity when overseeing accounting and financial procedures in complex periodic donor-funded non-government projects.
