Training Methodology

This course uses a combination of presentations and trainer-led group activities to discover and assess the best marketing platforms for various types of businesses. You will create an effective marketing strategy using professional frameworks, group discussions, and workshops to develop a marketing plan to appeal to your audience. You will have access to real-life marketing analytics and work to understand your best marketing options to make the greatest impact within a set budget.

Summary

Marketing campaigns aren't as simple as they may first appear. You need to identify your target audience, discover their interests and habits and place innovative and creative advertisements in front of them using a marketing platform they are most likely to access. This, coupled with the rapidly changing markets and ever-developing products, means that, as a marketer, you really need to stay on top of the marketing trends and methods to increase your conversion.

Strategic marketing isn't about placing an advert globally, hoping to attract enough interested customers. It's about looking to the future and understanding where the market is going. You'll need to analyse the best marketing platforms, utilise available user data, and create marketing plans ahead of time to bring in new customers, attract clients and stakeholders, and upsell new products to existing customers to keep them interested.
